SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1873.

A WINTER SONG.

[FROM THE GERMAN.]

Earth sleeps beneath the snowy cover
That Winter spreads o'er hill and plain,
In silence waiting till her lover,
The Spring, shall wake her up again.

And as up in its mother's bosom
The little child do h softly rest,
So now each tender bud blossom
Close sheltered lies upon her breast.

There dream they of warm south winds blowing,
Of sunshine and the dew drop's sheen;
And see rich odors round them flowing,
The meadows gay, the forest green.

And hear again the birds' sweet singing,
The waves to murmuring in their play,
While butterflies are round them winging,
And wild bees hum to them, Good day!

And up they stretch them at this token.
To see the glory far and near;
And find the long, long dream is broken,
For lo! the Spring again is here.

The Squire's Mistake.

Squire Dudley was in his garden, pulling weeds in his patch of tame strawberries, on the morning when he took a fancy for Ruth Lee's pretty face. She came down the road, looking fresh as a new blown rose in her plain calico dress and straw hat. Her brown hair, cut quite short, blew all about her face in little rings, and her blue eyes and bright cheeks made her as pretty a picture as one often sees. Squire Dudley saw her just as she came opposite the strawberry patch, and called out "Good morning" in his brisk, cheery way.

"O, good morning!" she answered. "You almost scared me, Squire Dudley. I didn't see you until you spoke."

"Pleasant morning, isn't it?" said the Squire, coming up to the fence. Ruth had halted in the road.

"It's beautiful weather," answered Ruth. "I told mother it was too pleasant to stay in doors and started off on a visit."

"Are your strawberries ripe yet?" said the Squire, wondering that he never had noticed what a fresh, charming face Widow Lee's daughter had before.

"Our strawberries!" laughed Ruth. "We haven't got one. Our old rooster got in one day, about a week ago and picked all he could eat, and then coaxed the hens in, and between them they ruined our strawberry crop."

"Too bad!" exclaimed the sympathetic Squire. "Have some of these, Ruth.—They're just ripe enough to be good."

He picked some great clusters of ripe berries and handed them over the fence to her.

"Thank you," said Ruth, smiling.—"How nice they are. Mother was making great calculations on her strawberry jam. She was terribly vexed when she found out what the hens had done."

"I've got lots to spare," said the Squire. "I'll send some over to your mother."

"She'd be much obliged to you," said Ruth; "if you have more than you want—"

"Plenty of them," answered the Squire; "plenty of them. Can have them as well as not."

"I must be going," said Ruth. "Good morning."

"Good morning," returned the Squire, looking after her as she went down the road. "I declare there ain't a prettier girl in town than Ruth Lee. I wonder some of the young fellows haven't got her away from the widow. If I was young now—"

Squire Dudley stopped suddenly. An idea had just flashed across his mind.

"I'm fifty," he said at last, after thinking quite busily for some minutes. "I'm fifty, but I don't look it. I don't see why I shouldn't try my luck, after all. Girls as young as Ruth marry older men than I am. I'm sure she'd make any man a good wife. Her mother is one of the finest women in the state, and she's brought her daughter up to know how to work, and be saving and prudent. I'm sure we need a good housekeeper. Mrs. Brown, she's old and fussy and crooked, and she's way of living ain't half living. I do believe I'll marry her, if she'll have me. Maybe Charley'll say it's foolish, but I can't help it."

The Squire fell to weeding out his strawberries again diligently, and kept thinking about Ruth all the while. Long before dinner was ready he had fully made up his mind to propose marriage to Ruth, and bring home a new housekeeper and mistress to the great house who as mistress had been dead for ten years or more; provided, of course that Ruth didn't say no, and the Squire thought there wasn't much danger of that, though why he should be so sure, I can't say.

"Don't you think we need a housekeeper?" he said to his son Charles that afternoon, as they sat on the verandah. The Squire evidently saw some new feature in the landscape, for he kept his face turned away from Charley's as he spoke.

"A housekeeper!" asked Charley. "We've got one. What do we want of more, I should like to know?"

"Yes, I know," assented the Squire, turning red in the face, and beginning to get a little uneasy; "but Mrs Brown is not such a woman as we need. She doesn't take any interest in the work as—as a woman would who—who had more interest in it."

After which extremely logical argument the Squire got more thirsty than ever.

"I understand that," answered Charley. "If she had a personal interest in the place, and in being prudent and keeping things up, she'd do better than she does now. Now she gets her pay for work, and that's all she cares for. It's all we can expect of her."

"Just so," said the Squire, glad to know that Charley agreed with him so far. "I've been thinking this morning that the best thing I could do would be to get some one who would take a personal interest in matters. I don't see as you intend to get married, and if you won't, I don't know but I'd better."

"You get married!" exclaimed Charley, in intense surprise. "Why, I didn't know that you ever thought of such a thing."

"And I haven't till this morning, exclaimed the Squire. "I got to thinking about it this morning, and the more I thought about it the more I thought it a

The Boston Advertiser says: "Two cases of divorce to come before the next term of the Supreme Judicial Court, in this country, present a coincidence seldom met with. Two sisters were married in the same town in Rhode Island, by the same clergyman, one in 1867 and the other in 1868, and have each lived since in this State. They both now petition on the same day for a divorce from their respective husbands on the same grounds—desertion and adultery."

The Massachusetts Press association met at Worcester Thursday, and after dicussing the bill before Congress, proposing the prepayment of postage on newspapers, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the emphatic protest of the Massachusetts Press Association, in meeting assembled, is hereby entered against the passage of the proposed law by Congress, requiring the prepayment of postage upon newspapers to regular subscribers before mailing. And be it further resolved that every member of Congress from Massachusetts is hereby requested to use his influence against such a law.

The Boston Transcript says:—Two years since, the business firm of Oakes & Oliver Ames was compelled—by reason of the action of the secretary of the treasury in regard to the Union Pacific railroad company—to ask for an extension of six, twelve, eighteen and twenty-four months on its liabilities, which at that time amounted to more than $7,000,000. The installments of this large amount have been promptly met, with interest, at maturity, the last of which became due last Wednesday. These obligations have been responded to without interfering in the least with the regular business of this concern, which is immense.

Robert Bowles, of the bankrupt firm of Bowles Bros, bankers in America and Europe, has been acquitted of the charges made against him. It was evident from the first that he was not the most culpable member of the firm; yet English law imprisoned him and after several weeks' delay brought him to trial. The member who is charged with fault, not to say dishonesty, in causing the failure fled to this country before the downfall of the firm. He was last heard of in an obscure town near Springfield. No steps have been taken as we understand it, to bring him to account and he is practically free. Here is a contrast of the modes of dispensing justice which needs no comment.

One of the most successful co-operative associations yet formed, was that at Rochdale, England, some thirty years ago.— Its object was to supply its members with the necessaries of life at less than hucksters' prices. Now it has a capital of six hundred thousand dollars, and has a yearly trade of five millions. This has resulted from a harmonious attention to its interests, and the circumstance that a few wise men were found to manage it for the working masses. In this country there have been no notable examples of success; there is too much distrust, impulsiveness, tongue rattling, getting disgusted, and a desire on the part of each member to rule it himself and submit to no one else. Discord ensues, and the association goes by the board. It may meet with more success sometime.

We are pleased to know that the recent communication under the caption of "Let the people have wisdom," has attracted considerable attention and enlisted many citizens in behalf of Mr. Miner's bill before the General Assembly there alluded to. It is true that too few of the people outside certain "rings" post themselves regarding legislation, and the idea of furnishing the freemen of the State with the laws, is a good one which we hope to see carried out. If the gentlemen of the Assembly are not in fear of their "high places" the freemen will be accomodated, though as the statutes stand today a presentation of them, met with the action which is calculated to follow, would cause much perplexing reading and study. However, the idea is good, and if carried out, there might perhaps after a few years, be more common sense and less "Heathen Chinee" to characterize legislative proceedings.

A TRAGEDY AND ITS RESULTS IN THE COURTS.—The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes, under date of Jan. 16, as follows: "We have now the particulars of the painful tragedy enacted at Vaux, in the Ardennes, during the war. I mentioned about a week ago the broad details—how a Prussian soldier had been killed, and, in revenge, forty villagers had been shut up in the church and ordered to select three of their number for execution. The victims were selected by vote instead of by lot, and the widow of one of them claimed compensation from the survivors. The story told before the Court may be thus briefly related: In October, 1870, Vaux was occupied by the enemy, and the next day the francs-tireurs fired into the place and killed a sergeant. The Prussians then locked up forty villagers in the church, and sent for the maire to name the three worst men among the prisoners; this he refused to do. The cure was then asked for three names, but like the maire he declined to consent, and like the maire also protested that the villagers were innocent. He went farther. He offered to lay down his own life. The Prussians would listen to no supplications, and on the 29th of October the officer in command entered the church, where the villagers were worn out with fatigue and anxiety consequent on seventy hours' confinement, and told them to choose three victims who were to be ready in twenty minutes, or the whole forty would be shot. the villagers first selected two mobiles who had been wounded, but they were objected to as not belonging to Vaux. Eugene Petit then proposed voting and persuaded his fellow-sufferers to adopt this plan and called out the names. The voting was done by holding up the hand, and naturally every one but the person designed voted for the three first persons named. A heartrending scene followed when the Prussians came for the victims.— One young man had been selected because he was so mobile, and would probably be killed a few days later. The Germans wished the prisoners to decide by lots and offered slips of paper and a helmet for the operation, but Petit, who played the chief role in this gloomy transaction, said the selection had been made. In the end the Prussians marched the unfortunate three away; they were confessed by the cure and shot. The persons prosecuted by the widow were sentenced to pay her a pension of 700 francs a year between them, each contributing according to the measure of his culpability."

A GRAMMATICAL DIALOGUE.—The following conversation between a young lady who wrote for magazines, and an old gentleman who believed he could speak English, occurred somewhere in Massachusetts, and is quoted for the benefit of grammarians:

Old Gentleman. "Are there any houses building in your village?"

Young Lady. "No sir. There is a new house being built for Mr. Smith, but it is the carpenters who are building."

Gentleman. "True; I sit corrected. To be building is certainly a different thing from being built. And how long has Mr. Smith's house been built.

Gentleman. "How much longer do you think it will be being built?"

Lady (explosive), "Don't."

Gentleman. "I should think Mr. Smith would be annoyed by its being so long being built, for the house he now occupies being old he must leave it, and the new being only being built, instead of being built as he expected, he cannot—"

Here the gentleman perceived that the lady had disappeared.

NEW ENGLAND NOTES.

MAINE.

An old resident of Bangor is spending his first winter at home for twenty-eight years, he having been in the woods lumbering every winter since 1844.

The Lewiston Journal says that there are 2054 persons of French Canadian birth in that city. There are 302 families. The families average about six persons each. Of the French population 802 persons are employed in the cotton and woolen mills.

The Belfast, (Me.) Age is responsible for the remarkable statement that Mr. L. M. Poor of Searsmont, on taking some eggs from a hen's nest recently, observed a slight protuberance at the end of one, but thought nothing of it till he heard the shell snap. Upon looking he saw a singular substance oozing out, which proved to be a fully developed serpent, seven inches long, which had apparently lain coiled up in the end of the egg. It was nearly the color of the white of the egg, and exhibited some signs of life when it first came out.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Shute, the Exeter bank "defaulter" shot away with over $200,000. The detective brigade, as yet don't know where to charge for him.

The snow is so deep in Conway that lumbering operations have been practically abandoned for the present.

As Rev. O. T. Lovejoy was returning home to Surry from Keene, a few evenings since, he was suddenly seized by two men, who demanded him to stop that they might attend to his case. Mr. Lovejoy, being a believer in "apostolic knocks" on proper occasions, just planted his fist on one man and felled him, thereupon the other fled in lively time, while the minister went on his way rejoicing.

Roger Meehan, an Irishman, arrived at Wolfborough Thursday from New York and proceeded to the South Village, where his wife resides, and attempted to enter the house, whereupon he made an effort to obtain entertainment as an invalid by drawing some of his bad blood with an old razor he had in his possession, which there is reason to believe he intended to use upon the person of his wife, as he made desperate threats that he would kill her. The result was, he made a much deeper wound in his throat than was intended, making it necessary to call a surgeon to sew it up. He is now under arrest.

VERMONT.

Grasshoppers were discovered in Weybridge, last week as lively and playful as ever. The Middlebury Register thinks it is justified in recommending "them as a hardy kind for general culture."

The Montpelier Watchman says in the case of the village of West Concord, in Essex county, there is a good illustration of what a railroad will do toward building up a town. The immense forest north and east of the village are being dotted with mills, each supplied with an efficient force of lumbermen and teamsters. There are sixteen of these mills pouring their business into the village, the largest turning out two million feet a year, and the whole giving employment to about 200 men and a large number of horses and oxen. The market created by this immense business is of incalculable benefit to the producers of the region.

MASSACHUSETTS.

A party of three Boston gentlemen, visited Island Pond, a short distance from Haverhill, on Thursday, and in the space of five hours caught between fifty to sixty pounds of pickerel by fishing through the ice. The fish averaged one and a half pounds apiece. For the benefit of a Newport fisherman, we will state that the source of our information does not state the age of the pickerel.

The small-pox flag has ceased to wave in Taunton.

There is strong similarity between the celebrated Webster murder and the Alley murder.

According to careful estimates, there were raised in Franklin county last year 3500 acres of tobacco, most of which is unsold. At an estimate of 1500 pounds to the acre, the amount is 5,250,000 pounds. At 20 cents a pound, the value is $1,050,000.

CONNECTICUT.

Professor B. G. Northrop, Secretary of the State board of education, decides that an acting school visitor has the right, as the superior ranking officer, to inflict corporal punishment on a scholar, in school only, when the offence or misdemeanor is committed in his presence and is a direct insult to him.

The contract for the woodwork of the new capitol at Hartford has been awarded to Larkin, the New Haven builder, for $200,000.

The imprudence of New Haven hackmen has been so great that now the authorities are going for their badges at the rate of five a day.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Various Matters.

—See notice of Friends' meeting in another column.

—A patent has been issued to J. M. K. Southwick of this city for rowlock

—Quiet at the police station last night — There were no prisoners and even the severe rain drove only one lodger in search of dry quarters.

—A man while eeling near Goat Island Thursday, is said to have hauled up a relic, it being a large brass buckle bearing the name of "America Engine, 9." It is supposed to have been in its watery hiding place twenty years or more.

—Steamer A. T. Serrell, Capt. Russell, left this port for Providence at ten o'clock this morning. Capt. Russell intends to place the steamer on the marine railway shortly, and put her in superior condition for the work of the coming summer.

—The card of J. H. Mullin, Civil Engineer appears in another column. This gentleman is now laying out Conanicut Park, and proposes to make Newport his permanent residence. He has had a large experience in the business and is in every respect a first class artist.

MEETING OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.—The School Committee met at eight o'clock last evening, but, outside of an informal consideration of one or two minor matters transacted no business.

NOT QUITE.—The report that the man who sold through Oliver Read esq., the forged bonds has been arrested in New York, is not correct. The fellow who was supposed to be the villain in question proves to be another man. The real villain has not yet been found.

MARRIAGES.—People will get married in spite of all that is said of expensive wives and troublesome children. Last year the number of weddings in this city was 117, and the following parsons officiated:

SCENE AT ONE OF OUR HOTELS THIS MORNING. TIME 8:30.—A jovial youth, who had evidently passed the greater portion of the last night out of his bed, made his appearance in the office, and found his way to the boot black's quarters. He was soon comfortably seated in the chair, and, under the soothing influence of the magnetism (perhaps) imparted by the friction of the shoe brush, was quickly sound asleep.

The artist of the blacking brush soon finished his labors, the placing of the different feet on the box requiring no exertion of the owner thereof.

The usual rap of the brush on the box as a signal that the job was finished, was realized by the unconscious youth by a prolonged snore; a vigorous shaking of his feet aroused him a little, a combination of raps and shakes and coughs and sneezes, finally awakened him, and he sleepily said, "Gus mus' frou' w' that un"? Moral—early to bed &c.

DIFFICULT NAVIGATION.—The steamer City of Newport had a hard time yesterday in getting to Providence. The fog, after passing Rocky Point, was so thick that it was impossible to see the length of the boat. Capt. Kelley kept the whistle in constant operation and moved with the utmost caution, but did not quite succeed in escaping vessels anchored in the channel. A slight collision occurred with a schooner by which her small boat was smashed and some other damage done, though probably nothing of a serious character. The captain of the injured vessel and all hands were below at the time taking a cozy breakfast, though it would seem that at such a time in such a place a horn should have been sounded almost continually. The other steamers fared no better. The Galatea was obliged to anchor, and the Bradford Durfee got aground. Later in the day the fog cleared up and all went off in the usual style.

REPORTED SHIPWRECK.—There arrived in this city yesterday, an Italian sailor giving the name of Francois Rosetti, who states that Thursday he was picked up adrift in an open boat about forty miles at sea, by a Block Island fisherman named John Williams; that he was one of a crew of eight, of Italian barque Emile Castella Marie, Capt. San Antonio Cocorole; that Thursday the barque sprung a leak and sunk so quickly that only three men escaped, two in one boat, and he in another, the occurrence taking place not far from where he was picked up. Nothing has yet been heard of the other two sailors. Rosetti reports that the vessel was freighted with an assorted cargo of foreign merchandise and was bound from Portland to New York. On arriving in this city, Rosetti was sent to the French consul, who, upon hearing his story communicated with the Italian consul at New York, and by request supplied the necessities of the man, and forwarded him by boat last night to New York to report to the Italian consul at that port. The story of the wreck gathered from Rosetti is considered not entirely consistent, but the hearing to be given him by the Italian consul in New York, may somewhat straighten the account as reported here.

BILLIARD TOURNAMENT. — The announcement that a billiard tournament would take place at the St. Denis Billiard Rooms on Pelham street, drew quite a number of Newport's professionals and others interested in the handling of the cue to Captain Moore's headquarters last evening, and no doubt but many obtained a "cue" to future easy playing, by being present. The gentlemen who were the cards of the evening's amusement are Joseph Dion, of New York, and James Bennett, of Toronto, Canada. The former is a brother of the famed Cyrille Dion, and the latter is the billiard champion of the New Dominion. They have been delighting hundreds during the week at the Narragansett Billiard Rooms in Providence, and on this occasion were accompanied by Mr. George Reynolds of that well known centre for Providence "knights of the cue." The first game called last evening was a four ball carom, six hundred points up, and the following is the score of what proved not only a brilliant, but remarkable contest:

Bennett—38 in four innings.

The second game was a three ball carom, one hundred points up, resulting also in favor of Dion as the following score will show:

Bennett—0—0—13—1—3—0—0—1—1—14—5—0—0—1—1—2—0—3.

Dion—1—0—0—2—0—2—0—4—5—11—2—5—0—8—51—3—0—1—4.

In both games there was frequent exhibition of decided science and skill, Dion's easy and graceful shots particularly gratifying all present. After a short intermission, the entertainment was concluded by an exhibition of fancy shots by Dion, which proved him completely "master of the situation."

By reference to our advertising columns, it will be seen that a free exhibition will be given this evening by the same gentlemen at the same place.

STATE NEWS.

There are 71 persons confined in the State prison. The receipts for 1872 amounted to $22,793 34, and the expenses, $19,574 44.

Henry B. Drown, about seventy five years of age, and a well known and highly esteemed citizen of Providence, fell dead Friday of heart disease.

Frank Heftey, keeper of a beer saloon on State street, Bristol, was convicted before the Justice's Court Wednesday, on three separate complaints for selling liquors on his premises in violation of law, and for keeping for sale and suffering to be sold on his premises, certain liquors to wit: ale and whiskey, and also for keeping his place of business open on the Sabbath, in violation of the town ordinance. Hefty was sentenced on the first complaint to a fine of $20 and ten days imprisonment, from which he appealed to the Court of Common Pleas; on the second complaint he was sentenced to a fine of $20 and costs, which he paid up, and for violation of the town ordinance was fined $5 and costs, from which he also claimed an appeal. Heftey had previously been convicted for keeping his place of business open after 11 o'clock at night, and paid a penalty therefor.

Hon. William S. Slater was Friday, elected President of the Providence and Worcester Railroad Corporation, in place of E. P. Mason, Esq., who declined a reelection. Mr. Hilton was reelected Superintendent, and Mr. Balch Treasurer and Clerk.

The "jury box" of the town of North Providence has been in constant use since the year 1765, and is considerable of a box yet. A new coat of paint, Mr. Lee thinks, will put it in proper shape for the new building on High street which is soon to be occupied for the purposes for which it is designed.—Pawtucket Chronicle.

The canvass which ended with the re-election of Gen. Grant opened amidst a labor strike. It looked as if the eight hour law would sweep over the country and make havoc everywhere. Startling theories were broached by the labor reformers, and professional politicians, though desiring to make this issue tell in the pending canvass, hardly knew how to handle the unmanageable team without alienating the middle and wealthy classes. But this ugly problem is still unsolved, and like the ghost of the murdered Banquo will not down. It is constantly resuscitated, and though it does not always appear in precisely the same form, it appears so persistently, and with such telling force, that we cannot refuse to recognize it. It is evident that some concessions must be made to the laboring classes, some plan adopted which will insure greater physical comfort, and higher mental culture. So many present employers, have in the past been employees, and so many present employees, hope and expect at some future day to be employers, that it seems to me some satisfactory middle ground can be adopted.

In all great questions of public interest and importance, multitudes of hypocrites are ever found arrayed on the side of truth and right.

Some of these seek popular applause; some, the loaves and fishes which simple minded philanthropic leaders are prone to scatter among their proselytes, and admirers, and some, are doubtless urged forward by a radical sentimentality.

There has been a great outcry raised by the working classes, against the alleged parsimony and injustice of their employers; and the combinations and exactness of monopolists.

Much of this has been nonsensical, hypocritical cant inaugurated by morose and dissatisfied workmen, and increased and circulated by that portion of the press which makes itself the organ of sensation and disturbance. But back of the cant, outlying all the hypocrisy, there is in very truth a grievous subject of complaint. We cannot well prevent employers from being unjust if they choose to be so, nor can we cheat monopolies,—by any legal process. It would be impracticable to fix, by law, the length of a day's labor on the remuneration to be received for it, in any pursuit. Exceptional circumstances against which it would be impossible to guard, would prevent employers and employees from getting along harmoniously under such a system.

Neither can we, without embarrassing legitimate and honorable business, legally prevent speculators with unlimited capital or credit, buying up large quantities of such staples as grain, coal, cotton, wool, &c., and by holding them back, creating a fictitious value when there is no scarcity. The greatest good for the greatest number demands a prevention, or at least a modification of these evils. Since the law affords no relief, unlearned and unthinking men have usually applied to force, seldom with success, never in this country, with deserved or assured success. Sympathizing as I do with the working men, in every part of the country, desiring as I do, to see them established upon a higher plane of moral intelligence and mental culture, severely censuring as I do, any measure calculated to crush out an honest and proper spirit of independence yet, there is nothing which disgusts me sooner than to see a body of 'strikers' loitering around bar rooms, cruising public streets, posting threatening notices on the doors of their former employers, while their families are suffering at home.

When such performances are followed out to their legitimate result, they usually end in the employees procuring a new set of workmen, or in the strikers themselves eventually sulking back to work at the employer's prices.

The employer engages other men, and goes on as before, suffering merely the annoyance which a temporary suspension of his business may be supposed to communicate.

In some cases however the strikers succeed in intimidating other help, and in closing workshops, or mines, or manufactories. Such cases are not very uncommon, and this state of affairs may continue for some considerable time.

But what is the inevitable result? The suspension of business,—to the capitalist means at most, a limited suspension of profits, a temporary withdrawal of income; while to the workman it means in most cases suffering, eventually starvation. The workman in order to be equal with the capitalist in a contest like this, in order to possess a probable chance of bringing him to terms, must be able when he strikes, to engage other work at once at fair wages. This can only be done, as a usual thing, under the influence of intelligent leaders, and through the assistance of co-operative associations. Strikes of this character are not dangerous to society at large, nor is their moral influence usually evil, but cases where a small body of dissipated, dissatisfied spendthrifts, succeed in breeding a disturbance among a body of workmen, convincing some, coercing others, until they throw a whole community out of employment, and then parade the streets with inflammatory banners, post threatening notices, write threatening letters, and make night hideous with their drunken yells, cannot be too soon reached by the strong arm of the law or made ridiculous and disgusting by the overwhelming power of public sentiment.

I do not imagine that there can ever be any satisfactory legislation regarding the duration of a day's labor.

Any uniform law applying to labor in general or to any trade in particular, would prove impracticable under peculiar circumstances. I do not question the possibility of an eight hour system working advantageously among a certain class of laborers. Machinery is every year competing more and more successfully with human power, and it will be difficult to fix any limit to which the ingenuity of a coming century may not arrive. As machinery grows more and more perfect and automatic, the sphere of labor must and will be greatly extended, new branches of industry will be developed, and less human labor being required for any particular work, wages will be increased and working hours diminished, and a higher cultivation will be demanded among the working classes.

Farmers probably suffer more at present than any other class, from a general adoption of the eight hour system, and many honestly believe that such an adoption would involve farmers all over the country in one common ruin.—I think however that much of this anxiety is uncalled for. Such things invariably regulate themselves,—all that they require is to be let severely alone. —The immediate result in this case would probably be this: farmers would dismiss help, curtail grain growing and enter more largely into the stock business, and, the supply of grain diminishing,—while the demand owing to the increase of stock, and the naturally expected advance of population, increased, the prices of farming produce would be soon brought up to a mark that would enable the producer to hire help even on the eight hour system. As I have already said, such things unconciously, and inevitably regulate themselves. I think that agriculture is yet in its infancy, that the close of the next century will mark as progressive an era in this noble work as the close of the present century will mark in mechanics.

The grass crop is harvested even now, almost wholly by horse or steam power. The application of machinery to the raising and harvesting of grain and roots has not yet been so successful, but a few years will place our steam plows, horse hoes, husking machines, potato diggers, &c., &c., upon a level with our mowers, reapers, tedders, rakes and horse hay forks. One man being able through the agency of these machines to do the work which formerly required five or ten, labor will not be in so great demand, and the increasing population will be compelled to spread out and cover the immense fertile region of the West and South West made rich by the alluvium deposit of a score of centuries.

I purpose at no distant day to present some facts relative to co-operative societies in England, and to offer some suggestions, regarding the plan of their formation, and their mode of operation in this country.

Can any Medicine do More?

The art of changing the base metals into gold has not been discovered, but the happy results of a discovery infinitely more important are familiar to the community, and have been so for twenty years. To exchange debility for vigor, sickness for health, apathy for energy, gloom for cheerfulness, is a much more desirable operation than to transmute lead into the root of all evil. And this is what Hostetter's Stomach Bitters accomplish, and have been accomplishing, daily ever since their introduction. Dyspepsia, billiousness, nervous affections, constipation, intermittent fevers, rheumatism, sick headache and general debility are no longer the bug-bears that they were a fifth of a century ago. The Bitters, taken as a protective medicine, prevent them, and taken as a remedy cure them, and the people know it. Hence their overshadowing reputation and enormous sale. The fame of the great vegetable specific is ever on the march, and at a pace that no competitor can live. It is to-day the foremost medicine of its class in the civilized world. Every now and then attempts are made to rival it, and sometimes a nostrum concocted in the idle hope of sharing its popularity, has a brief spurt of apparent success. But it is all illusion. One by one they sink like stones in the sea, while the great tonic, whose celebrity has been the cause of these bold ventures, continues to ride on the topmost wave of public favor, unapproached and unapproachable.

VEGETINE.—By its use you will prevent many of the diseases prevailing in the Spring and Summer season.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,
SCHENCK'S SEAWEED TONIC,
SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS,

Sometimes medicines that will stop a cough will often occasion the death of the patient. It locks up the liver, stops the circulation of the blood; hemorrhage follows, and in fact, clogging the action of the urinary organs that caused the cough.

Liver complaint and dyspepsia are the causes of two-thirds of the cases of consumption. Many are now complaining with a dull pain in the side, the bowels sometimes costive and sometimes too loose, tongue coated, pain in the shoulder blade, feeling sometimes very restless, and other times drowsy; the food that is taken lies heavily on the stomach, accompanied by acidity and belching of wind. These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver. Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy colds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly stopped, the lungs, liver and stomach clog, and remain torpid and inactive, and before the patient is aware of his situation, the lungs are a mass of sores, and ulcerated, and death is the inevitable result.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant which does not contain any opium, nor anything calculated to check a cough suddenly.

Schenck's Seaweed Tonic dissolves the food, mixes with the gastric juice of the stomach, digests easily, nourishes the system, and creates a healthy circulation of the blood. When the bowels are costive, skin sallow, and the patient is of a billious habit, Schenck's Mandrake Pills are required.

These medicines are prepared by Dr. J. H. SCHENCK & SON, Northeast corner of Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, Penn., and for sale by GEO. C. GOODWIN & CO., 38 Hanover street, Boston, and John F. Henry, 8 College place, New York, Wholesale Agents.

For sale by Druggists generally.

JANUARY BILLS

On the 2d day of January, 1873, the undersigned will present all bills for payment. These bills are fully due and a speedy payment is needed and hoped for.

Again thanking those of his customers who so promptly and honorably pay their bills in the first few days of the month, he is glad to say that each succeeding year has so added to the honorable list that it is hoped that this will be a great and crowning season, and that tardiness and inattention to just obligations will be a thing of the past.

A previous notice fixed the rate of interest on unpaid bills of one per cent. per month, and having been publicly advertised becomes a contract to that effect.

GENERAL NEWS.

FROM WASHINGTON.

CONGRESS.

In the United State Senate, Friday, the bill to provide for the distribution of the Geneva award was considered and a favorable vote taken thereon, but as a quorum was not present the bill was not passed. The joint committee on the library reported adversely on an international copyright. The House passed the military academy appropriation bill with amendments.

CONCERNING RAILROADS—THE POSTAL SERVICE—SAFETY OF HUMAN LIFE.

Advices from officials of leading railroads throughout the country indicate general dissatisfaction with the new scale of compensation proposed by the Postmaster General, and incorporated in the postal appropriation of the mails, and imminent danger that the postal cars may be withdrawn. One of the roads operating a portion of the line between this city and New York has already given notice of its intention to take off the cars if the compensation is not made more nearly adequate to the service performed, and there are indications that enough of the main lines will do something to seriously disarrange and delay the mail service of the country.

Representative King of Missouri introduced Friday a bill to increase the safety of human life on railroads by requiring all passenger trains to use power-brakes operated from the engine, and to make an annual report of all casualties on the roads, on a penalty of an injunction from the federal courts, $500 fine for each day and train from which the brake is omitted, and and double the amount of civil damages to persons injured. False reports render officials making them liable to fine or imprisonment.

NEW YORK CITY.

MAYOR HAVEMEYER ON THE REPUBLICAN PARTY OF THE STATE.

A committee of the late "liberal" party, headed by General Cochrane, called on Mayor Havemeyer Friday to congratulate him on his recent attitude toward the republican party. The mayor in the course of his reply said: "With the greatest respect for the republican party, having voted for Grant and Dix because I thought them both honest men, I at the same time feel that the republican party in this State has lost some character of late in being led, administered and influenced by a coterie who gamble all night to cheat each other, and intrigue all day to cheat the people. With such I cannot coalesce. I have no sympathies with them, however friendly I may be to the mass of the party they represent."

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

Charles Hoy, of East Thirteenth street, shot his wife dangerously in the chest, Friday night, in the presence of his four children; and he would probably have shot them also but for the prompt alarm given by the neighbors. Hoy was arrested in the street in the endeavor to escape.

A LECTURE ON DEAFNESS AND DISCHARGES FROM THE EAR.

BY A. G. LIGHTHILL, M. D.

DR. LIGHTHILL CAN BE CONSULTED AT THE PERRY HOUSE,

DURING THE WHOLE DAY AND EVENING OF

Thursday, February 13th.

CONSULTATION FREE.

Deafness is one of the most severe afflictions incident to mankind. In proportion to its intensity it disqualifies alike for the duties and enjoyments of life, renders converse with others tedious and almost painful and to the naturally intelligent is often more grievous than the deprivation of sight. And yet in the majority of cases of confirmed deafness the loss of hearing might often have been prevented if judicial medical advice had been resorted to in time and the suffering of many deprived of hearing must be materially increased by the remorseful reflection, that their misfortune is due to culpable self neglect. Very rarely indeed is hearing lost suddenly, the process is generally a very slow and gradual one, the approach of deafness being so insidious that the time can scarcely even be fixed when the difficulty first commenced and its progress is so imperceptible that no increase is noted except at long intervals of time.

At first the hearing is found a little less acute than formerly, and a somewhat closer attention has to be paid to hear distinctly. Certain voices appear to be husky, or certain persons seem to articulate carelessly, or "talk way down their throat." By and by some difficulty is experienced in hearing conversation when two or three are talking, or when it is carried on in a low tone of voice, the sound is heard but the words cannot be distinguished. By degrees the hearing becomes more and more clouded and indistinct until it is entirely lost or very seriously impaired.

Noises in the Head.

Noises in the head are sometimes the first and only indication of a morbid condition of the ear. At first they are slight and only come by spells, but after a time they are constant and increase in intensity. They usually resemble the escape of steam, the ringing of bells, beating of the heart, the humming of insects and in fact every imaginable sound. When they prove a source of terrible torture and distress, and many a patient who applied to us for relief, was far more anxious to have the noises removed than the hearing restored, if only one thing or the other could have been accomplished.

Deafness by Spells.

With some the hearing at first suffers only by spells the ears becoming obstructed during a cold, or while blowing the nose. In such cases the hearing is often suddenly restored with a snapping sound or a loud, startling report, or returns in a measure after the cold has passed off. But the spells of deafness usually occur more often, and last longer until at length permanent deafness supervenes.

Deafness in One Ear.

Occasionally we find only one ear is attacked, the other retaining its hearing power often for years. When this is the case no difficulty is experienced in hearing conversation readily, except when approached on the deaf side, but the power is lost to know the direction of sound; if halloed to for instance, a person so affected could not tell which way the sound came from. In the majority of cases the other ear becomes affected in time, and what was before a serious inconvenience becomes then an actual misfortune.

Deafness in Childhood.

In many cases of deafness that present themselves to us for treatment, the loss of hearing can be clearly traced to some trifling aural complaint which commenced during infancy or childhood, and which was allowed to run its course unchecked and unattended. Often there are no visible systems denoting a diseased condition of the ear. The child merely suffers from a slight but growing indistinctness of hearing, which assumes the appearance of inattention, or shout mindedness, and necessitates a frequent repetition of questions. The real cause of this apparent inattention is scarcely ever suspected, and we know of many instances where children have been cruelly and persistently punished by parents and teachers for inattention, carelessness, or stupidity, when the fault was entirely due to defective hearing.

Discharges from the Ear.

While the foregoing cases are characterized by the absence of any noticeable features calculated to arouse suspicion, no such excuse can be urged in cases of discharge from the ear, for the disease at once reveals itself to the eye and to smell, being, in fact is offensive to one sense as it is to the other.

The discharge usually results from some inflammatory process of the ear, produced by scarlet fever, measles, cold, or other cause, and varies in different cases, and even in the same individual, at different times.—Usually it is a thick, purulent, greenish yellow matter, occasionally streaked with blood. At times it is of a viscid and ropy nature, and again it may resemble melted cheese in appearance and consistency.

In some cases it merely coats the lining of the auditory canal, while in others it is so copious as to pour from the ear, and then excoriate the surrounding tissue, which presents a raw and inflamed appearance.

The discharges is always characterized by a fetid odor, but in some cases it is so highly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself and to others.

Discharges from the ear is dangerous both to hearing and the system generally. In some cases it occasions total deafness, whilst all the hearing suffers to a more or less extent, and none escape without some notable injury to the hearing power. Aside from its effects on hearing, the disease is apt to give rise to Neuralgia, Epilepsy, St. Vitus Dance, Paralysis, and other nervous disturbances. results scarcely to be wondered at when we consider the close proximity of the diseased aural cavity to the great nervous centre, the brain, to which the inflammation or ulceration might be communicated with fatal consequences. And yet some persons are content to go through life with this filthy, loathsome disease about them, others endeavor to conceal this affliction; and others again are deterred from taking proper advice by the ridiculous fear that healing the discharge might be injurious to their health, when just the contrary is always the case.

A Few Words of Advice.

Those who value their hearing should seek competent medical advice upon the slightest suspicion of a diseased condition of the ear or the least defect in hearing. To do otherwise is to jeopardize one of our most valuable senses.

Many persons neglect the diseased state of their ears, in the hope that the difficulty may get well of itself or would be outgrown. No hope has proved more fallacious. It is the experience of all aurists of repute that diseases of the ear are not benefited by nature or time, but that, on the contrary, the disease becomes more and more developed and confirmed, and more destructive to hearing.

We cannot, therefore, too strongly condemn the practice of those physicians who, through ignorance or carelessness, endeavor to inspire confidence in the healing process of nature, by advising patients to let diseases of the ear alone. In our experience we have had repeated demonstrations of the fact that such advice is nothing short of malpractice, and deserving of the severest censure.

In their earlier stages diseases of the ear yield readily to skillful medical attendance, and even in cases of long standing, and where the hearing is seriously impaired, an entire cure can often be effected by appropriate means. Desirable results, however, can only be expected from the attendance of a physician who has made himself familiar with the subject by special study, and who has acquired sufficient practical experience to give a mastery over aural diseases. Medical science cannot be held responsible for the frequent failures or possible injury resulting from treatment when administered by incompetent or inexperienced hands.

In conclusion we would caution all who value their hearing against the pernicious practices of syringing or dropping oil and other liquids into the ear, without consulting medical advice, or of wearing gold or silver tubes "concealed whistles," or other patent arrangements. These mechanical contrivances cannot possibly serve any use or purpose but always irritate the ears and often increase the deafness. None of these means constitute any part of rational practice, but bear the condemnation of all educated medical men of whatever school and belief. They are the emblems of those who steal the livery of heaven to serve their own selfish ends. By our rational and scientific method of treatment which we employ we hurt the small fortion to restore thousands to perfect hearing and improve others so as to render social intercourse a pleasure, where before it was a burdensome effort.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1873.

good plan. You haven't any objections!"

"Of course not," answered Charley. "You can do as you think best. If you deem it advisable to get a wife I have nothing to say further than the hope that you will get some one who will make you happy."

"She will," said the Squire very decidedly, "she will, I am sure."

"May I ask who 'tis to be?" inquired Charley.

"I—I haven't asked her yet," answered the Squire as red as a rose. "I'd rather wait until I'm sure of her before I tell who it is. She might say no, you see, and I should feel rather cheap."

Prudent Squire Dudley. That afternoon he picked a pailfull of his finest strawberries, and directly after tea started off across lots in the direction of Widow Lee's, with the berries on his arm. It was dusk before he got to the widow's, for he walked slowly. He had very busy thoughts for company. He was wandering what it were best to do. Should he propose at once to Ruth, or should he see her mother first and talk with her? He concluded that the last was the wiser plan. As he opened the gate noiselessly he heard voices in the other corner of the garden, and stopped a moment to find out whether it was the widow and her daughter.

"I never had an idea of it before," said a voice, which he recognized as Charley's; "not the least in the world. He said he hadn't thought any about it until to-day. I couldn't find out who he had in view. I hope it isn't old Miss Sharp. She'd like to get somebody.

The Squire burst into profuse perspiration at the idea of having Miss Sharp for a wife.

"He said he didn't see as I ever intended to get married," went on Charley. "I didn't tell him I had got me a wife picked out, but I wanted to. I am sure he'd approve my taste in making a selection."

"What nonsence!" laughed a clear pleasant voice, Ruth's voice, the Squire knew the moment he heard it, "If I am going to be your wife I want you to quit laughing at me in that sly way, pretending you are flattering me all the time!"

"His wife! Good gracious!"

The Squire was so taken by surprise that he came near dropping his strawberries.—So it was all settled between them. And he had come near proposing to his son's intended wife. He felt cold all over, at the thought of it. How luckily that he didn't take Charley into his confidence, and tell him whom he had concluded to marry.

"I declare," exclaimed the Squire, "I've made a mistake this time, sure enough. The rascal got the start of me. I'd like to know what I'm to do? I've told him that I intended to get married, and if I don't, he'll likely as not mistrust something. Dear me?"

The Squire was in trouble. Another bright thought occurred to him. There was the widow. After all she would be more suitable for him than Ruth would have been. She was somewhat near his own age. A fine woman. A smart woman. She would make a fine mistress for his empty house. Why shouldn't he marry her, since he could not have her daughter?"

"I'll do it," exclaimed the Squire, bound to go through with the matter since he had got so far. "I'll do it."

He knocked. The door was opened by the widow, round-cheeked, rosy and smiling.

"Why, Squire Dudley! Good evening," she exclaimed. "I hardly knew you at first, you haven't been here in so long. Come in; take this rocking chair, and let me take your hat."

The widow bustled about and got the Squire a chair and deposited his hat on the table before he happened to think of his basket.

"O! Ruth told me your strawberry crop had proved a failure, so I thought I'd run over and bring you a few. Strawberry shortcake don't go bad this time of year."

"I'm a thousand times obliged to you," said the widow, taking the basket. "I was so provoked to think the hens should spoil mine. Such a nice lot as I would have had."

"If you want any preserves, come over and get 'em," said the Squire. "We've plenty of 'em. Mrs. Brown, she won't do anything with 'em, except as we use them in the season of them, I suppose."

"I want to know!" exclaimed the widow. "You ought to have them done up. They're so nice in the winter. I would like to get some for jam; and if Mrs. Brown won't take care of them I'll do them up on shares."

"I wish you would," said the Squire.—"Things are all going to wreck and ruin about my place. "Tain't to be expected a hired woman will take any interest in affairs;" and here he sighed deeply.

"No; that's so."

It was strange that the Squire had not found out how things were going to wreck and ruin before. Mrs. Brown had been there ever since Mrs. Dudley died.

The Squire and the widow kept up a very brisk conversation, and at the end of an hour he was more deeply in love with the widow than her daughter, and began to wonder how he had been so blind as to overlook such a delightful woman so long.

By and by the widow bustled out, and presently came back with a pitcher of her last year's cider and a plate of cake.

"Do have something to eat and drink," urged the widow. "If I'd known you were coming I'd have made a cherry pie. I remember you used to like my cherry pies."

"I—I wish you'd come and make cherry pies for me all your life," blurted out the Squire, turning very red in the face again. "I—I came to ask you to marry me, Mrs. Lee."

After which innocent falsehood the Squire felt decidedly relieved.

"I'm sure I'd as lieve marry you as any man," answered the widow, blushing and looking as pretty as a rose.

"It's all settled, then," cried the delighted Squire, and kissed her plump on her lips just as the door opened and Charlie and Ruth came in.

"Allow me to make you acquainted with my new housekeeper," said the Squire, bowing very low to hide his red face.

"And allow me to present my wife—that is to be," answered Charley. "You take the mother and I'll take the daughter."

I am happy to say that, under the "new administration," things are no longer going to wreck and ruin.

DON'T

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS.

Worthless Imitations are on the market, but the only scientific preparation of Carbolic Acid for Lung diseases is when Chemically combined with other well known remedies, as in these TABLETS, and all parties are cautioned against using any other.

In all cases of irritation of the mucous membrane these TABLETS should be freely used, their cleansing and healing properties are astonishing.

Be warned, never neglect a cold, it is easily cured in its incipient state, when it becomes chronic the cure is exceedingly difficult; use Wells' Carbolic Tablets as a specific.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Mrs. Dr. Secor's Medicines,

Will be found a sure cure for any of the diseases for which they are put forth. Look at the names of the reference—they are the names of some of our most reliable citizens, who have known her and her treatment for a number of years, and who willingly and cheerfully recommend her and her medicines to all needing them. And if this is not sufficient to convince the most skeptical, you can call at her office, 119 Warren Avenue, Boston, where sufficient testimonials will be shown from living witnesses, who will feel happy to speak of her in the highest terms as a thoroughly educated and skillful physician. Her very extensive and successful practice of over 25 years has given her a wide field of experience in the treatment of those diseases she compounds her medicines for.

Her ALTERATIVE will be found a sure cure for Scrofula in its worst form, Glandular Swellings, Salt Rheum, Old or Indolent Ulcers, Syphilis, Cancerous Collections, Tumors, Sore Eyes, Nodes, Itch, Scald Head, Discharges from ears, Ring Worms, and all Exanthema of the Skin, Moth, Blotches, Pimples, Flesh Worms, Discolorations, etc. Ladies who wish a clear and beautiful complexion, will find it just the preparation they need. If any gentleman has been subjected to the use of mercury for fever, etc., the Alterative will be found invaluable in cleansing and purifying the system.

Her CINCHONA BITTERS is a sure cure for Dyspepsia.

Her NERVOUS, NEURALGIA and ASTHMA PILLS are excellent for all persons afflicted with Neuralgia, Colic, Delirium Tremens, etc.

Her CATHARTIC PILLS are purely Vegetable.

Her CHOLERA SPECIFIC is a remedy for Cramps and Spasms, Asiatic Cholera, Diarrhoea, etc.

Sold by all respectable Druggists.

Any person wishing to consult MRS. DR. SECOR before beginning to use her medicines, can do so by addressing or calling at her office, No. 119 WARREN AVENUE, from 10 A. M., to 4 P. M.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS

R H EDDY

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks, or Designs,

No. 76 State St., opp. Kilby St. Boston

AFTER an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS,

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse.

CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part, leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.
